A conservator of the person must ensure that the conservatee is properly fed, clothed, and housed. A conservator of the estate is responsible for managing the conservatee's money and other property. Conservatorship applies to an adult, i.e., a person 18 years of age or older.

Informed Consent:

~ When a developmental or mental impairment limits an adult's capacity to exercise his or her rights, the person may need someone else to exercise certain rights on his or her behalf. Conservatorship is most important when consent is required for a particular act, and a person with mental retardation or other developmental disability is unable to give it because of a lack of understanding about what they are consenting to. For example, the informed consent of a patient is required before surgery can be performed. If the patient is an adult with mental retardation or other developmental disability, parental consent frequently is not accepted unless the parent is also the patient's conservator.

Advance health Care Directive

~ An Advance Health Care Directive is the best way to make sure that your health care wishes are known and considered if for any reason you are unable to speak for yourself. It has replaced the Durable Power of Attorney for Health Care and is now the legally recognized format for a "living will" in California. An Advance Health Care Directive allows you to appoint another person to be your health care agent and to write down your health care wishes. For more information, see www.cmanet.org. or talk with your primary care physician.
