Recommended Timeline

Adjusted Cohort Graduation Rate

The Adjusted Cohort Graduation Rate (ACGR) (AKA “cohort”) is the standardized measure of high school student outcomes at the end of the four-year window in which students are expected to complete their high school graduation requirements.

Step 1 – Identify the first high school grade level record 9-12, and the academic year that record falls within.

Step 2 – Match the color block to determine which academic year the student is expected to complete. This is the cohort membership year.
